

ABSTRACT

A vehicle mount apparatus has asymmetrical variable stiffness capabilities adapted to support an assembly body from both sides of a vehicle relative to a vehicle body. Thereby, minimizing vertical and horizontal vibrations generated by an engine in the assembly body and vibrations generated by the assembly body relative to the vehicle body during sudden starts and sudden stops and resulting in reducing trembling of the vehicle and improving ride characteristics of the vehicle.